

Graphical User Interface Check-List Button Control and Method

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A computer-implemented method and system are provided for modifying a data list by a user within a graphical user interface. A first control is provided that operates within the graphical user interface. The first control is manipulated in order to access a second control. The second control includes the data list and allows modification of the data list after the second control is accessed.

5